

ABSTRACT

A method of presenting advertising to viewers in a computer network environment includes monitoring a viewer's interactions with an associated computer system, and adjusting a timing of displayed advertisements on the viewer's associated computer system based on one or more of the viewer's monitored interactions.

5 based on one or more of the viewer's monitored interactions.

卷之三

40024453.doc